Important Home-School Communication

Dear Parents and Carers

❖ Do you know that there is a new website for Hurstville Public School?
❖ Do you know that there is a newsletter, called The Belltower, which is published every fortnight?

If not, you are missing out on lots of important information regarding your child's education at Hurstville Public School.

New Website

Our new website can be found at www.hurstville-p.schools.det.nsw.edu.au.

There is a great deal of information about our school, the Department of Education and Communities, and education in general, on our website. There is also a Translation option at the top of the webpage which allows the reader to read the website in a choice of 50 languages. You can also find news items; copies of notes that have been distributed to students; a calendar of coming events; and the current and past copies of The Belltower.

Please become familiar with the website and visit it at least weekly, as it is a vital part of being informed about what is happening at our school.

The Belltower

Each Friday, in the even weeks of term, a school newsletter, The Belltower, is published electronically and uploaded onto the school website. It has all the current information and is a “must read” for all parents and carers. You can read it on the website or have it emailed directly to you by subscribing via the website. If you complete the subscription information, The Belltower will arrive automatically in your inbox each fortnight. However, if you choose this option, don’t forget to also go to the website to see what new information has been uploaded.

We strongly encourage all families to become frequent visitors to the website and regular readers of The Belltower, so that you are well informed about how best to support your child at school.
